

Save the Date!

Texas Society for Ecological Restoration & Texas Riparian Association

Joint Conference

The New Ecology: Managing for Resilience in a Changing World

November 1-2, 2013
Junction, Texas

Join us along the banks of the South Llano River on the campus of Texas Tech University's Llano River Field Station for TXSER and TRA's Conference:
The New Ecology: Managing for Resilience in a Changing World

Junction, Texas, known as the "Land of Living Waters," is part of the Edwards Plateau, home to some of the world's most diverse collections of aquifer fauna and endangered and rare species. Network and find new, exciting ways to contribute to the field of ecological restoration - through presentations, speakers, and field trips in this unique region.

For updates on registration, field trips, & program information, visit:
<http://txser.org> or <http://texasriparian.org>

